Changing Roles of an Indian Society (19)

against women are much higher in big cities or rural areas. Time has changed women suffering in the form of discrimination, exploitation, degradation, aggression. In a country where women and girls are revered as the Mother and the Goddess, this is a pity. A society that is unable to respect, care for its women and children loses its moral values. The major lacuna in the laws is that they are gender neutral. Many women and their children are therefore, misused to settle scores, harass the husband and his family. It is not surprising that women project self-inflicted injuries as assault by their husbands. Sensitivity training and knowledge of the rights of women and children are another vital need and must be provided for all law enforcement agencies. To report such cases at first we need to educate women and children. They must be educated and encouraged to come forward to the police. There are many violent cases but due to the society very few are reported. The problem is not solved by the government alone but by a campaign involving the entire country and civil society. A nationwide campaign is needed to reignite Indian values and traditions that respect and nurture children.
